

Mission to Haiti

October 5-12 2019

In Haiti we built houses out of the rubble following the 2010 earthquake, we were on the ground making repairs barely two weeks after the Hurricane in 2016, and now we planning our fifth trip for 2019. This trip we are moving into the mountains to continue construction of a Medical Clinic.

Location — We will travel to the city of Grand Goave. The city is a few hour drive from the capital Port-au-Prince. There we have connected with CBF Missionary Jenny Jenkins. She has a compound just outside of town, literally on the ocean. From there we will travel to the mountain community she serves. She is currently preparing a place for us to eat and sleep (safe drinking water, generator for power).

Mission — We will continue the construction of the Medical Clinic. There will be skilled aspects, but also grunt labor — everyone is able to help. We will be work alongside and build relationships with Haitians (some we have meet before, like Johnson).

Haiti remains the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. The systemic dysfunction - lack of infrastructure and education, corruption, and broken government - prevent improvement. While we may not be able to fix the system, so our trip will focus on touching and impacting individuals.
